Juniors Win Livestock Awards at Judging Meet Held at Amboy City Park

Large Crowd Attends Farm Bureau and 4-H Club Event

Nearly 500 persons attended the huge 4-H club show and Farm Bureau picnic held last Wednesday at the Amboy city park where judging of stock was a feature of a day which also included sports activities and a girls' 4-H club dress revue.

An excellent number of livestock was exhibited and a great deal of interest added to make the day a successful one. The hogs, numbering about 220, were judged in the morning. There were about 100 head of sheep and they were also part of the morning's judging program. Beef and dairy cattle were judged in the afternoon.

Showing that Nelson township has tall corn, Ward Hartshorn won the tall corn contest with a stalk measuring 14 feet and 4 inches. Mr. Hartshorn was the winner of the same contest last year. Second and third prize winners were George Henrich of Sublette township and Joe Auchstetter of Lee Center township.

Judges of livestock were Ben Eade of Sandwich and Clarence Lash of Geneseo.

The following were the places of the livestock classes. The group method of judging which has been popular of late, was used:

Farm Briefs

GOOD OATS

Thirty-four acres of oats of good quality were threshed recently at Anton F. Becker's place. The yield is reported at 35 bushels per acre.

CROP SURVEY

The 1938 hay crop promises to be the largest in ten years, corn and soybean prospects are far above average, and yields of small grains have been average or above according to the official report of the Illinois and Federal Departments of Agriculture.

PREPARE FOR SHOW

Vocational agriculture students of Dixon high school are preparing their livestock for exhibit at the annual Section One Vocational Agricultural Fair which is to be held this year on August 23 and 24. This year's events will be held on the Whiteside county fair grounds at Morrison.

STOCK PARADE

The largest display of livestock in Bureau county will be presented to the patrons of the Bureau County Fair on Friday morning, September 2, in front of the grandstand. This display will consist of a giant parade of all animals entered in the classes for beef cattle, dairy cattle, draft horses and ponies.

GROWING IN SHOCKS

Oats, it is reported, are beginning to deteriorate in the shocks with much warm weather and a lot of moisture. The bundles were mostly tangled and that hasn't helped the water to run off. Some shocks in this area are showing the effects of the moisture and warmth in sprouting oats. Some are beginning to look green.

HORSE SHOWS

Outstanding attractions at the Ogle County Fair this year on September 3, 4 and 5 will be two horse shows, one on the night of September 3 at 8 P. M., and the other on the afternoon of September 4 at 1 P. M. Both cash premiums and ribbons will be awarded at each showing. To the horse show this year will be added some classes that seem to have met with popular acclaim of late: namely, roadsters and hackneys.

The date was agreed upon today at a meeting of editors of state farm papers which sponsor state corn husking contests and jointly the national contest. Pennsylvania was admitted to the group today and will be represented in the national by its champion husker and runner-up.

Other states represented in this year's contest will be Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Minnesota, Nebraska, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Missouri, Kansas and Ohio.

At Your Command

More and more farmers and stockmen who have a sound basis for credit are finding that they don't have to go outside their own credit institutions for financing at any time.

The man who is using his Production Credit Association has solved the problem of short-term credit. His interest is low; he gets his loans when he needs them and repays when he sells his crops or livestock.

NORMAN MILLER AND P. UTLEY WIN IN CONTEST

Norman C. Miller, route 4, Dixon, was Class A winner in Lee county in the Governor Horner Farm Floral contest, according to word received today from the Department of Public Works and Buildings at Springfield. Paul Utley, residing three miles south of Dixon on route 89 was winner in the Class B group.

County winners in the first class receive a $10 cash award and in the Class B bronze plaques are awarded.

Grand state prize winners, chosen from the regional selections, will be announced later. Awards will be presented by Governor Henry Horner at the state fair on Sunday afternoon in a ceremony arranged by the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs and the Garden Club of Illinois. These clubs assisted the state in conducting the contest.

The judges in this county were Mrs. Orla S. Nangle of Paw Paw, Mrs. Sara Losey of Ashton, Mrs. Ruth Ogilvie of Compton and Mrs. J. A. Long of Amboy.

In Region II which includes Bureau, Carroll, Henry, Jo Daviess, Lee, Ogle, Rock Island, Stephenson, Whiteside and Winnebago counties, Walter Capp six miles north of Sterling on Route 88 was the Class A winner. L. R. May of Elizabeth, Illinois was the Class B winner. The judges were Mrs. Albert E. Grinton of Joliet, Mrs. O. H. Rahn of Chadwick and Mrs. Hugh Allen of Mount Morris.

OGLE COUNTY'S FAIR TO HAVE HARNESS RACES

The 85th Ogle County Fair at Oregon will be held on September 3-4-5 with harness racing on the afternoons of September 3 and 4, and horse shows on the night of September 3 and the afternoon of September 4, in which champion saddle, roadster, jumping and high school horses from all parts of the state will participate for cash premiums of around $1,000 and ribbons.

Racing purses have been advanced to three hundred dollars for each of the six harness races to be staged. This insures a large and fast field of horses. The free act program for this year has been improved one hundred per cent, and should meet with the approval of all.

Total premiums for livestock, grains, quilts, flowers, fruits, etc., are $5,000, insuring a large showing all down the line. The prime stock of northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin will be on exhibit.

Besides, there will be exhibits of farm machinery, electrical equipment, motors and many other interesting features to say nothing of long lines of clean shows and concessions. Admission prices have not been advanced, irrespective of the fact that the 1938 fair programs will be much more expensive than ever before. Sunday night, Sept. 4 at eight o'clock a Chicago radio station will stage a program. Monday night a big vaudeville will close the fair.

Advice for Saving Horses From Dread Disease is Given

Urbana, Ill., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The division of animal pathology and hygiene at the University of Illinois college of agriculture offered this advice today for protecting horses and mules against sleeping sickness which made an appearance recently in Illinois:

In infected areas, keep the animals in screened stables.

Use burlap or muslin fly covers on animals at work and spray them with an insect repellent.

Keep stables clean.

Vaccinate animals early so they will develop a strong immunity.

Staff members of the division said only about one of every four animals in an exposed area develops the disease and about eight of every ten infected horse can be saved with prompt treatment.

The disease is seasonal, appearing in July or August and continuing until the first killing frost. It is believed to be carried by mosquitoes, although biting flies also are suspected of transmitting it.

For some reason, when people want to get more eggs, they will buy expensive tonics or remedies, but they seldom consider anything so simple as giving their hens more cool water. And yet the cool water which costs nothing, will probably do more to increase production than anything you can buy in a bottle.

Do Pullets Need Worming?

It is important not only to have your hens laying well, but to get your pullets in production as soon as possible.

Many chickens that have grown well all spring begin to look droopy about the middle of the summer and don't seem to put on weight the way they should. In nine cases out of ten, I am told, it's because they need to be wormed.

A good poultryman told me not long ago that the best and cheapest way to control worms was to keep the growing birds on clean range. "If you can't do that," he said, "you ought to worm the flock several times—not just once. They ought to be wormed first when they weigh between 2 and 2½ pounds, before the worms have had a chance to do permanent damage. And six weeks later they ought to be wormed again."

If your chickens need worming right away because you certainly right away because you certainly want a flock of healthy pullets to lay eggs this fall. And you want to get them into production as soon as possible, too, because manufacturing eggs is profitable business these days.

Sincerely yours,

With the remark that "Whoever tells a lie is not clean-hearted; such a person cannot cook a clean meal," Beethoven once dismissed his housekeeper, who had lied to spare him annoyance.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred F. Whippman Observe 60th Anniversary; Came to Dixon in 1880

Looking back over three-score years of happiness together, a life filled with activity and change (but which they regard as just moderate), and still looking forward . . . That's Mr. and Mrs. Fred F. Whippman of 204 East Seventh street, natives of Somerset, Pa., who today observed their sixtieth wedding anniversary.

The couple, who were neighborhood playmates in childhood, did not mark the occasion today with a celebration, for Mr. Whippman went about his usual tasks at the courthouse, where he has been employed as caretaker for nearly 12 years, and Mrs. Whippman, a kindly, self-sufficient individual who thoroughly enjoys her home and flower garden "doesn't care much for parties anyway."

Mrs. Whippman, the former Miss Anna R. Broom, was born June 29, 1860, a daughter of William and Hannah (Alburn) Broom. Her husband, whose parents were August and Charlotte (Long) Whippman, was born Nov. 16, 1857.

Religiously, both are staunch Lutherans, and were baptized in the German Lutheran church when but a few weeks old, in keeping with the German custom of those days. The couple were married on Sunday morning, Aug. 16, 1879, in the home where the 18-year-old bride was born and spent her girlhood, and following the simple ceremony, the wedding party attended church services as usual. Mrs. Whippman describes her wedding gown as a gray alpaca with pleated ruffles.

Came West in '80
Following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Whippman went to housekeeping near Somerset where they resided until coming to Dixon in the spring of 1880. Boarding an excursion train with several relatives at Roberts Station, near Somerset, the Whippmans came directly to Dixon, arriving here on Feb. 14. At first, they resided in the country with his sister, Mrs. James Hoover, but have made their home in Dixon since early March, 1880. They formerly resided on Walnut avenue for 32 years, and purchased their present residence on Seventh street 14 years ago.

Retaining the alertness of a much younger woman, Mrs. Whippman, with her keen interest in present day happenings and her store of facts about early history, is an unusually interesting conversationalist. She bases her program for the peace and happiness which she and her husband have enjoyed through good times and bad these past 60 years on the simple theory: "Work, and plenty of it." She keeps her home glistening and full of tempting odors from the kitchen. Last year, she canned 500 quarts of fruit and vegetables.

When the first of the summer was brought to her father's home, before that, the Broom children, their parents and grandparents would gather in the kitchen on winter evenings, with a single tallow candle as the only light for the children's school books and the women's knitting.

Mrs. Whippman also remembers hearing her grandmother tell about coming to this country from Germany on one of the old sailing vessels which required 14 weeks for the crossing. The trip was a perilous one, and nearly ended in disaster, when the food supply became exhausted. The vessel, dependent entirely upon the wind for power, went backward nearly as fast as forward on some days.

Spun and Wove
The grandmother was an expert at the spinning wheel, working with both flax and wool. All fall and winter, she spun and wove cloth to make garments for the family, with little Anna and her brothers and sisters doing their share by winding the wool, sheared from the family's own herd of sheep, on spools for the shuttle. Two of Mrs. Whippman's most prized possessions are her mother's German-English Bible, printed in 1849, and a beautiful bird-bordered coverlet, with the name of the maker and the date, 1853, woven in one corner. Her father's loom, Mrs. Lizzie Bingham, spun the wool for the old spread, whose red, blue and olive green design is still bright and clear.

Before they were old enough to go to Sunday school, Sunday was play day for the Broom children. They went to the woods near their home for moss to carpet their playhouses, made mud pies which they dotted with teaberry, and enjoyed excursions to the fields

Golfers Have Two-Ball Mixed Tourney

In the twilight mixed foursome handicap tourney last evening on the Dixon Country club links, Miss Marian L. Davies and her partner, Harry Badger, were winners of the nine-hole low net play, with Miss Leone Ort and Eugene Barrowman winning second honors. Nineteen players turned out for the two-ball event, and remained at the club house afterward for dinner and dancing.

Those playing were Mr. and Mrs. George Beier, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Buchner, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Barrowman, Mrs. Robert Brewster, Mrs. Floyd Chapman, Miss Marian L. Davies, Miss Leone Ort, Miss Elsie Neff, Miss Mary Katherine Rorer, Harry Badger, John Mills, Lyle Myers, John Shaulis, Emmerson Rorer, Floyd I. Smith and Edwin Rosenkrans. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Coss joined the party for dinner.

OBSEVE THREE ANNIVERSARIES

Three August birthday anniversaries were the motive for a triple celebration last evening at the J. L. Richardson home at Amboy. Mrs. Floyd Derby, Mrs. Lester Kellen, and Miss Ethel Ross were sharing the compliment.

A scramble supper on the lawn was followed by an evening of 500 on the screened porch. Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kellen held high score at the close of play, and Mrs. Earl Kellen received the all-cut prize.

Attending the celebration were Mr. and Mrs. William Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kellen and Mrs. Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kellen, Mrs. John L. Leggett, Mrs. Sherman L. Shaw, Jr., the Misses Marie, Ethel, and Kathleen Ross, Shirley Richardson, and Rose Murtaugh of Amboy, Mrs. Floyd Derby, and William Rusk of Dixon.

ATTENDING STATE FAIR

Miss Ruth Hartshorn and her mother, Mrs. Ward Hartshorn of near Harmon left Monday for the state fair at Springfield. Miss Hartshorn is a member of the Wide-Wake 4-H club. Her project this year was an informal dress, and she chose accessories for a complete ensemble, her selection winning her the honor of representing Lee county at Springfield in this particular class.

HAVE PICNIC AT DEKALB

Swimming, roller skating, and a picnic dinner were enjoyed by a party of Dixionites who motored to the city park at DeKalb on Sunday to spend the day. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Burns, Miss Marilee and Warren Burns, Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and children Gene and Ronald, Miss Beatrice Thomas, and Robert Edous.

Wed 60 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Fred F. Whippman of 204 East Seventh street, who were quietly observing their sixtieth wedding anniversary today. The couple are both natives of Somerset, Somerset county, Pennsylvania, and have resided in Dixon since the spring of 1880. He will be 81 years old on Nov. 16, and she was 78 in June.

ATTEND COUSIN'S WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Lee H. Perkins returned Sunday evening from Hammond, Ind., after attending the wedding of Mrs. Perkins' cousin, Miss Blanche Halberg of Hammond, and J. C. Jackson of Indianapolis. The nuptials were read at 4 o'clock at the First Christian church in Hammond, with nearly 80 guests attending, and were followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Halberg.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson left for Wisconsin on their wedding trip, and will make their home in Indianapolis.

The bride, who has visited in Dixon at the Perkins home, has been employed in the offices of the W. B. Conkey Printing company in Hammond. Among the wedding guests was her aunt, Mrs. Rose Jones, former well-known golf pro, and several times winner of the Chicago western open tournament. Mr. Jackson is associated with the Federal Housing Authority in Indianapolis.

Mrs. Perkins spent last week in Hammond, assisting with preparations for the wedding, and attending a number of pre-nuptial parties for her cousin.

SCAVENGER HUNT

Scavenger hunts continue to provide fun for young Dixionites, one of the latest groups being 12 friends who set out Friday evening from the John Keller home on West First in search of listed "loot."

Bidden were the Misses Jane Hoberg, Jeanette Pelton, Beverly McBride, Connie Schumacher and Betty and Helen Keller, J. Ellis, Floyd Keller, Truman Thompson, Douglas Covert, Elmer Keller of Mount Morris, and Roy Wade.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

Mrs. Charles Hamill was unaware of the birthday surprise being planned in her honor last evening until eight friends arrived at her Third street home for an informal celebration. Card games were played, and refreshments were brought by the guests. There was also a birthday remembrance for the hostess.

In the party were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Plovman, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kline, and Mr. and Mrs. Hamill.

More Than 100 Guests Attend Sixth Annual Prairieville Reunion

Reminiscing in a setting made invitingly cool by the shade of trees planted during the school days which several of the guests were recalling, was enjoyed by more than 100 guests attending the sixth annual Prairieville school reunion on Sunday on the school grounds. Family reunions, illness, vacation trips, and another community gathering nearby are believed to have reduced the attendance, which is usually much larger.

Most of the company arrived in time for a basket dinner served in the school building at 1 o'clock, and others came later for the informal program and renewing of acquaintances. More than a dozen communities were represented, including Dixon, Sterling, Morrison, Polo, Lanark, Durand, Winnebago, Moline, Rock Island, and Chicago, Ill.; Delavan, Minn.; Marshalltown, Ia.; and Sacramento, Calif., as well as from the Prairieville vicinity.

Special recognition was given Mrs. Hannah Wetherbee, 90, who was the oldest guest attending. She expressed her pleasure at being "back home", and spoke interestingly of early days in the school and Sunday school. Mrs. Ida Ott Catron of Sacramento, Calif., was awarded the prize for attending from the farthest distance.

The president of the association, Ida Lefever of Sterling, called the afternoon meeting to order at 2 o'clock. Miss Clara McCune spoke briefly, and led the group in singing two songs appropriate for the occasion, "Auld Lang Syne" and "The Church in the Wildwood." Helen Overcash, the secretary, read an account of last year's meeting.

Lloyd Thummell read the welcome address, which was in the form of a poem composed by his sister, Mabel Weaver, who was unable to attend. Willard Powers of Rock Island responded, substituting on the program for George Rikert of Chicago, who could not be present. Mrs. Lottie Proctor of the memorial committee read the names of members whose deaths occurred during the past year, including Emma Klostermann, Mary Brauer, Mrs. Reuben Andreas, Mrs. Greta Lenox, Nellie Miller, and Mrs. Ella Carolus.

The report of the nominating committee was accepted unanimously, the new officers including: President, Luella Powers; vice president, Lulu Mason; secretary-treasurer, Helen Overcash. Letters were read by the secretary from John Scholl of Chicago, Louise Hemmingsway of Colorado Springs; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Powers of De Ruyter, N. Y., and Barry Lennon of Dixon, all expressing regret at being unable to attend.

At the suggestion of the president, short talks were made by several of the oldest Prairieville pupils present, including Mrs. Emma Wilson of Dixon, who related that she was in school in 1869 when the trees on the ground were planted. She said men of the district planted the trees, and the women served a picnic dinner.

Others speaking included Mrs. Eckles of Marshalltown, Iowa, who has been visiting her son, Harry Wetherbee in Chicago. Mrs. Clara Hess, Mrs. Warren Powers, Mrs. Ida Catron, Harry Wetherbee, three former teachers, Clara McCune, Mrs. Paul Harms, and Mrs. Edna Pine, and the present teachers, Miss Marguerite Richardson, and Miss Lena Bowers. The program was concluded with a hymn.

MRS. LORD HAS ANNIVERSARY

Mrs. Paul G. Lord of 606 Brinton avenue was honored on Sunday at a birthday dinner party at Grand Detour. Her anniversary actually occurred on Saturday, though the celebration was postponed for a day to enable out of town relatives to attend.

Circling the table for the anniversary dinner were Merritt Lord and daughters Margaret and Louise of Quincy, Mrs. Harry Bischoff and daughter Miss Barbara and Charles Patten of Oak Park, Miss May Lord, and Mr. and Mrs. Lord. Mr. Bischoff, who is visiting his sister in New York City, and Mrs. Merritt Lord were unable to attend.

Mrs. Lord, who was born in St. Louis, Mo., has resided in Dixon for many years.

PARTIES AT SKATING RINK

Miss Evelyn McNeil entertained nearly 100 friends at a roller skating party at the local rink last evening. Francis Keegan of Polo is sponsoring a skating group this evening.

WHAT'S THE ISSUE?

President Roosevelt has appealed to the people in Kentucky, Georgia and elsewhere to nominate and elect "liberals." He is on record against "feudalists" and "demagogues."

What we need, and what the times call for, is a definition of liberalism. It will not do for us to go to the dictionary. There we could find an accurate description of a liberal, but that would not necessarily be Roosevelt's definition. We could go to history, but Roosevelt ignores history. It will not do even to go to Mr. Roosevelt for a definition of liberalism because, as he has shown, his mind changes from year to year, month to month and week to week.

Must we, then, go from state to state as the president points out his favorite liberals? Must we take them upon his word? Must we elect the men he points out? If so, that is one-man government. The executive who controls the legislature can control the laws, and through them he can nullify the courts which interpret the laws.

In Roosevelt's Georgia speech last Thursday we had a glimpse of today's Rooseveltian idea of liberalism. He must have the "cooperation" of the congress to enact such laws as he (Roosevelt) believes he has a mandate to bring about. We always had understood that the president had the privilege of making recommendations, and that the congress, if it felt the laws unwise, had the privilege of ignoring the recommendations.

The president has recommended the overthrow of the supreme court. Do the Barkleys and Camps pledge themselves to follow that idea of liberalism? The president has recommended the enactment of a governmental reorganization law which would have given him too much power. Do the Barkleys and Camps pledge themselves to make the president a virtual dictator? If so, is that liberalism?

Is there any one-man government today in which liberalism exists?

PAY AS YOU FLY

Now it is possible to buy airplanes on the installment plan. The terms, as stipulated by one credit firm, are a third down and the balance in twelve easy monthly payments, plus 6 per cent for carrying charge. The company neglected to state in the only report at hand whether the purchaser need be a licensed pilot, or whether just anybody can make a payment and start learning how to fly in the partly-purchased machine. A conservative guess would be that the credit house has some qualms, and that it may take some precautions against going to the hospital to make collections on a washed-out airplane.

Regardless of the fact that some ambitious purchasers eventually wind up with more contracts than they are able to meet, the extension of installment buying into the aviation field need not be looked upon coldly. There is many a house, automobile, refrigerator and radio that never would have been built or manufactured had it not been for the thrift imposed by the knowledge that the payments must be made.

THE WORLD LOVES A HERO

Douglas Corrigan, whose lamentable error caused him to become a hero only a notch below Lindbergh, returned to New York to face a welcome such as few have enjoyed who returned from abroad. On the day of Corrigan's return to a notable celebration in his honor, a child found a bottle floating at the seashore. The bottle contained a note signed "Corrigan." The note said the writer was flying over Nova Scotia at 6000 feet, and should reach Ireland "at 5 p. m. tomorrow at that rate." But the note surely was written by a crank. Corrigan didn't know he was headed for Ireland. We have his word for it.

Corrigan's inefficient compasses and his gas tank in the front window caused him to take the wrong direction, and this development reminded us that the nation is about ready to adopt another hero. Lindbergh is not available for worrying purposes, having established himself on an island, guarded by French police and German police dogs, where he is safe at least temporarily. The Hughes flight around the world was a marvel of efficiency, but it didn't have exactly the right flavor to make the public go wild. Wiley Post is dead. Babe Ruth is no longer clouting homers, Red Grange is in the shade. There are plenty of heroes in the making, but Douglas Corrigan is already made. He has displayed thus far the elemental modesty that the public likes. Thus far he has not assumed that because he made a mistake and landed in Ireland, he is qualified to pose as an authority on dancing motion pictures, medicine, politics, astronomy and philosophy. He seems to expect a good job in aviation and judging by his record established even before he made his great mistake, he is entitled to a good job.

Now that Corrigan has made his last mark it would be well for yellow journalists and others to let him alone. They all but ruined Lindbergh. If they hound Corrigan the way they did the original Lone Eagle it would be well for the Irish lad to seek an island in the first place, without waiting to be driven to it.

Washington—To the naked eye there is no discernible change in the relationship between the President and Big Jim Farley. On the surface they are still "Boss" and "Jim" to one another.

But to close associates it is no secret that despite offended denials and outward appearances, a profound change has taken place in their relationship.

This does not mean that they have quarreled or split. They have not, and are not likely to for some time yet. What has happened between them is much more subtle. Back of the mind of each there has developed and grown stronger a deep-rooted suspicion of the other.

Roosevelt suspects Jim and his secret ambitions, and Jim returns the compliment. Both men have plenty of grounds for their suspicions.

REAL POLITICAL BOSS

For today, with Roosevelt almost as popular as ever, he is definitely shaky within the Democratic organization. The President has the popularity, but his Postmaster General has the machine votes. And it takes machine votes to win in a convention or primary—for a third term or anything else.

Since 1936, almost every move made by Jim has been aimed at securing this domination. His hundreds of speeches, the tens of thousands of hands he has shaken, the hundreds of thousands of letters signed in green ink—all have been a part of this quiet, purposeful campaign for power.

In view of which, it is remarkable that the two men have remained friends. But Jim knows that the President is sincerely devoted to him, and in turn, no one has ever heard a word pass Jim's lips questioning the President's friendship.

But as to Roosevelt's attitude toward him as his successor in the White House, Jim has no illusions.

He knows that much as the President likes him and will play square with him, he does not intend to let the crown of the New Deal be placed upon the barren bean of James Aloysius Farley.

PRESIDENTIAL VIRUS

And how Jim covets that crown! Fifty years old, with thousands of friends in every section of the country, and with all the strings of the national Democratic machine securely in his grip, Jim, behind his careful mask of breezy unconcern, is as deeply smitten with the presidential virus as any aspirant in the country.

This is the key to the deep-seated grievance of the inner White House circle against Farley. They charge that in the burning throes of 1940 ambition, Jim has deliberately subordinated every consideration looking toward the furtherance of the New Deal.

They don't accuse him of malice or double-dealing. That is not his nature. They know there is not a squarer shooter in American politics today than Jim Farley.

But Jim is a machine politician. To him the New Deal is merely the organization with which he happens to be associated. At heart he is no more a New Dealer than his very good friend Vice President Jack Garner.

Unlike the President and his little band of liberal intimates, whose controlling objective is a perpetuation of the New Deal, Jim has only a professional interest in it. If the New Deal can serve him to attain the White House—O. K., he is for it. He will make liberal speeches and in sonorous phrases praise the work of "our great President."

But Jim will not purge Democrats for the New Deal. That isn't machine politics. It wasn't the way he learned his craft and it isn't the way he works. Also, axing Democrats would not help him in 1940.

FARLEY STRATEGY

So, while Roosevelt and his crusaders were quietly girding themselves for a great house-cleaning of the Democratic party, Jim, just as quietly, did nothing. He didn't oppose these plans or double-cross them. He just smiled blandly and went his own sweet way—doing nothing. And at the psychological time he went to Alaska.

As the President's political chief-of-staff, Jim could have written a far story than the haphazard record of the purge to date. By starting early last winter, he could have set the stage in a number of states for the elimination of administration foes.

In Iowa, for instance, he could have used his influence with state leaders to put a real candidate in the field to lick Gillette. But that would have entailed a fight which might hurt Jim's chances to control the Iowa delegation in 1940. So Jim kept hands off and anti-New Dealers Gillette thumbed his nose at Roosevelt.

Jim played the same cagey game in Colorado, Nevada and Washington. In Oregon he even gave personal support to anti-New Deal Governor Martin at a time when other New Dealers were opposing him.

Jim also failed to do anything for endangered New Dealers.

He didn't lift a finger for Representative Maury Maverick. In Kentucky, while keeping hands off, he was secretly partial to Governor Chandler. And in Manhattan, where Representative John O'Connor, Tory Tammanyite chairman of the House Rules committee, is openly soliciting Republican help to save his scalp, the President had to go over Jim's head and personally ask Ed Flynn, Bronx leader, to put a strong candidate in the field against O'Connor.

Jim had refused to lift a finger, despite the fact that O'Connor had caused the President more brief last session than the entire Republican minority in the House. Only in one state has Jim cooperated with the purge. In Maryland he has taken off his coat and is doing yeoman work against Senator Millard Tydings, with whom he has a personal vendetta.

ROOSEVELT VS. FARLEY

There are two significant reasons for Farley's political activity. One is Farley's own presidential ambitions. The other is his secret opposition to a third term for the President.

Jim has never said anything about him, but privately he is as dead set against Roosevelt in 1940 as the more outspoken Jack Garner. Jim also is not keen about the President hand-picking his successor—unless, of course, the choice is Jim, for which he knows there is no chance.

So it is not improbable that sometime in the course of the next two momentous years Roosevelt and Jim may face each other across a table, not as chief and lieutenant but as equals, and Jim will say, "Frank I'm holding four aces. What have you got?" (Copyright, 1938, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

SENATE RACE IS CALLED UNEVEN BY SEN. GEORGE

Waycross, Ga., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Senator Walter E. George declared here the question in Georgia's senatorial race was whether the people "are entitled to elect or choose their own servants."

"The issue has been raised by no less a person than the President of the United States," he said in a reelection campaign address. "It is an uneven contest. We have given the President enormous powers... and yet I have no fear."

In a reference to ousting of carpet-baggers after the war between the states, Senator George declared "we answered that question once when federal bayonets stood guard at our ballot boxes."

Described by President Roosevelt at Barnesville, Ga., as out of touch with the "broad objectives of the party and the government," the veteran slashed back early in his speech with a reference to the Warm Springs visits of the chief executive.

Senator George said he was born in Webster county, Georgia, the son of a tenant farmer, in the '70s.

"I am a Georgian bred and born," he said, "a full-time Georgian, my friends."

"I am a Democrat... I am no part-time Democrat. I have never scratched the party's ticket, from constable to president."

He cited his work in behalf of party nominees from former Governor Al Smith in 1928 through the reelection of President Roosevelt in 1936.

FDR GIVES HIS PRAISE TO FOUR STAUNCH FRIENDS

Devoted Radio Address to Social Security Legislation

Washington, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Presidential praise of Rep. David J. Lewis (D-Md.) as a social security pioneer received general interpretation today as a boost for his campaign to unseat Senator Millard Tydings.

Roosevelt referred to Lewis last night at the end of a radio speech advocating extension of the social security act, which the 69-year-old legislator helped draft.

"I thank publicly, as I have so often thanked them privately," the president said, "four men who have had long and distinguished careers in the public service—"

"Congressman David R. Lewis of Maryland, who is known as one of the American pioneers in the cause of social security; Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, who also was long its advocate; Senator Harrison of Mississippi and Congressman Doughton of North Carolina, who carried the bill successfully through the senate and the house of representatives."

"They deserve and have the gratitude of all of us for this service to mankind!"

Special Interest

Inclusion of Harrison aroused special interest among politicians here, for he led a fight against administration tax provisions last spring.

Wagner, who like Lewis is a staunch Roosevelt supporter, reaches the end of his term this year. It has been assumed he will seek re-nomination unless he is drafted to run for governor of New York.

There was immediate speculation as to whether Roosevelt would extend further help to Lewis before the September primary in Maryland.

Lewis quickly followed up the president's address with a radio speech to Maryland voters. He criticized Tydings, whom Roosevelt had not mentioned, for merely voting "present" when the senate passed the social security act. In fact, he added, Tydings had voted against 22 "vital" administration measures.

Tydings did not refer to the president's speech when he appeared later in the evening at a Democratic rally in Hagerstown, Md., but he predicted the 1939 congress would make substantial revisions in the social security act. (It was the third anniversary of that law which occasioned the president's address.)

Much To Be Desired

Tydings told the Hagerstown audience:

"The money taken from men and women employees (for old age pensions) is equivalent to an income tax on the lowest earning group. There is much to be desired in the social security act."

Roosevelt expressed hope the next congress would extend and improve the program, now limited to old age pensions and unemployment insurance. He mentioned as possibilities the provision of medical services, liberalization of the old age insurance, and inclusion of additional groups of citizens in the program.

"What we are doing is good," the president said, "but it is not good enough."

"These accomplishments of three years are impressive, yet we should not be unduly proud of them. Our government is fulfilling an obvious obligation to the citizens of the country and has been doing so only because the citizens require action from their representatives."

Praise For Perkins

"If the people, during these years, had chosen a reactionary administration or a 'do nothing' congress, social security would still be in the conversational stage—a beautiful dream which might come true in the dim distant future."

Roosevelt paid tribute to Secretary Perkins of the labor department for her share in drafting the social security act. She listened to the broadcast at a banquet of social security officials.

Lewis also attended the banquet and spoke briefly before he hurried away for his campaign address. The one-time coal miner said his interest in social security would not lag until "the right to work is as fully protected as the

Answer to Question No. 1

1. If she finds she is forced into this choice it is conclusive proof that she has made a most unhappy marriage. A husband and wife who cannot compromise their interests, whether in social life, reading, sports, art, music, dancing, recreation children and all of life, are bound to end either in continual conflict or else in one giving up his or her individuality—a tragic thing to do.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. Dr. Rex B. Hersey has interviewed over 1,000 persons several times daily and had them rate just how happy or unhappy they were on a happiness scale of 12 degrees ranging from "Highly Elated" to "Deeply Worried and Unhappy." He has found that one can rate his degree of happiness just about as accurately as his degree of unhappiness, but he has to give happiness more thought because usually when we are happy we scarcely think about it but when our shoes pinch or we lose money or friends or our job we are acutely aware of it.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. Never. To my mind, one of the grandest and also most terrifying things about human life is the thought that an immense part of our lives must be utterly alone. It is probably both the biggest and best and the worst and meanest part of us. But the greatest and most beautiful moments we ever have are those of some hand we love, the look of understanding in another's eyes makes us feel that, after all, we are not alone—that some one does understand and our buried life has come into real life in the sunshine of another's love. It is these moments that give us courage for another day. (Copyright, 1938, John F. Dille Co.)

5 NAVY FLIERS KILLED, 4 HURT IN TWO CRASHES

Disaster Struck Twice During Practice of Night Landings

San Diego, Calif., Aug. 16.—(AP)—

Disaster struck twice among the navy's war planes in "routine" maneuvers, leaving five fliers dead and four injured today.

Attempting a landing after dark last night, a patrol bomber smashed nose first into San Diego Bay, carrying two of a crew of six to their deaths.

The four survivors, all injured, were pulled from the water as the wreckage sank.

Ten hours earlier, a speedy torpedo plane plunged earthward from an altitude of 3,000 feet over Camp Kearny mesa. Its three crewmen perished in the crash.

Death, however, spared six men in another patrol bomber, which was damaged in a forced landing on the bay last night. The fliers emerged unhurt.

On Night Landings.

Both bombers, of the type flown successfully on long distance flights to the Hawaiian Islands and Panama, had been practicing night landings in preparation for a 16-plane mass hop to Coco Solo, August 31.

Navy authorities said one of the bomber's dead was H. Boeckman, about 23, but identification of the second victim was lacking until later today.

Fatalities in the torpedo plane crash inland were:

Mike Frank Mosicki, aviation machinist's mate, who leaves his widow, Mrs. Willie Mae Mosicki, Pensacola, Fla.

Don Fay Smith, radioman, survived by his father, O. F. Smith of Des Moines, Iowa.

Ralph Thomas Carter, aviation chief ordnance man, who leaves his widow, Mrs. Juanita E. Carter, San Diego.

Over 100 Chinese Reported Drowned

Shanghai, Aug. 16.—(AP)—More than 100 Chinese passengers drowned today when the small Chinese coastal steamer Hansa sank after a collision with the British steamer Tungwo off Wosung.

The Tungwo reported she picked up only 13 Chinese survivors. The British boat Scarab sent the message that she had saved the Hansa's German captain after a long struggle in rough water.

The Hansa transported passengers and chickens between Shanghai and Yangtze estuary points. Normally Chinese owned and operated, she was taken by Germans at the outbreak of the Chinese-Japanese war.

Determined to retain their ancient monopoly on the silk industry, the Chinese prohibited the export of silkworms until the fourth century, A. D.

Co., last week.

Obituary

Hiel Elisha Ford was born January 14, 1905 on a farm in Lee Center township, the son of Frank and Maude Ford. After graduation from the rural school, he attended the Lee Center high school and later the Greer Automotive school in Chicago, after which he assisted his father on the farm. At an early age, he was baptized in the Latter Day Saints church of Plano and for many years attended the Lee Center Congregational church and Sunday school. On Sept. 8, 1926, he was united in marriage with Alice Flentze of Amboy. Six children were born to this union, two of whom preceded their father in death. After his marriage, he farmed in Lee Center township, later near Amboy and the past four years lived near Dixon. His widow and four children, Helen, Joyce, Hiel and Rita survive. His mother, Mrs. Maude Ford of Lee Center, two sisters, Mrs. James Wheeler of Franklin Grove, and Betty Jean at home, one brother, Elbert of Aurora, also mourn his untimely passing. On Aug. 8, 1938 at 12:30 A. M. Hiel Ford passed away at the Katherine Shaw Betha hospital at Dixon at the age of 33 years, 6 months and 25 days. His death was due to injuries received while at work on his farm combining grain. He was well liked and respected by a host of friends and neighbors in the vicinity of Lee Center, Amboy, Harmon and Dixon. The funeral was held Wednesday, Aug. 10 at the Lee Center Congregational church, with the Rev. G. A. Cox officiating, accompanied by a friend. WEST BROOKLYN WHIPS OUT WIN OVER PAW PAW

Villagers Waiting Now For Important Tilt With Walton

West Brooklyn rounded out another victory when they defeated the Paw Paw nine by a score of 16-3. The boys broke loose in the first inning, recovered their batting eyes that have been almost absent in the last few games and before the third out was accomplished had piled up a nine run lead over their opponents. They collected four more runs in the second and finished up their half of the eighth with an additional three runs tally making their total 16 runs.

Paw Paw was less fortunate in compiling scores and did not collect anything in that line until the fifth when their first run registered. They followed with a single tally in the sixth and their final run in the sixth. Knauer breezed through the game with no trouble at all and Young finished the game for West Brooklyn, pitching two innings. Knauer's mates gave him plenty of support at the bat. Martinkus leading the home team with three hits, one a home run, closely followed by Walter, Young and Knauer with two hits each. Walter demonstrated his sincerity in hitting when he banged out two home runs, one with two men on base. Martinkus followed suit in the second inning and smashed his home run drive with two men aboard. Paw Paw used four pitchers to squelch the deluge but the West Brooklyn boys treated them all alike.

Walton Next
The West Brooklyn team looked and played baseball Sunday like the fine team that they are and now are anxiously awaiting next Sunday's game with Walton. With the teams so closely crowding the top in the league and with the end of the season practically at hand, much interest and enthusiasm is attached to the forthcoming Brooklyn-Walton tilt. Both teams are battling for first place and the game should prove a highly seasoned contest. The West Brooklyn boys ask the fans to be on hand Sunday, to give encouragement and co-operation for this day and to show Walton in a very definite manner that the fans of West Brooklyn as well as the team know what good sportsmanship means in a baseball game.

FANFARE

OLD AND THE NEW

Brownie Emmert has asked that the members of the American Legion Junior All-Stars team meet between 5 and 6 o'clock Friday at Reynolds field to make arrangements for a game between the legion players, piloted by Emmert, and the present legion team.

SMOKEY JOE SAYS

Smokey Joe Miller declares that Cummings should play him for the city championship instead of taking on the Panthers. That's what Joe feels after trimming the Dixon team twice this season. Anyway, Joe says he'd like a game with the winners of the Dixon vs. Panthers tussle.

MARKETEERS WIN

An umpire behind the plate made his word the law at the game the California Market won from Walton last night down south, 11 to 5. The ump wasn't taking any sassy talk from either side and when he put his foot down it was planted. Morris did the pitching for the Market and Murphy and Red Ellis were on duty behind the plate.

TENNIS MEETING

The top ranking players holding the first eight positions on the Dixon tennis ladder are asked to attend a meeting at the Telegraph office Thursday night at 7 o'clock for arrangements to play off the city singles championship beginning Sunday. Come one—come all. To date the top eight fellows on the ladder are George Covert, Dick Joslyn, Ken Smith, Howard Quick, Garland Snow, William Rusk, Alan Wienman and Charles Kearney.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Bones Carlson: He hit the single which scored Greenfield in the last of the ninth to win for the Telegraph with two men down.
McConahay: Playing for Reynolds Wire and Screen he had a perfect night at bat with three times up, three runs, three hits and no errors.

Fordham and Rebuck: In the opening game for Reynolds both drove in runs with triplets out to left field.

Bones Carlson again: For his peg from shortfield to first to catch ambling Barnhart on his way to the sack.

TOMORROW'S THE DAY

At last the ballots in the Telegraph's All-Stars softball poll have been counted and tomorrow will be announced in full. Two men will be selected for each position with a manager and an assistant. The top men, the winners in each position, must be in the starting lineup—after that it is up to the manager. Twenty men and two pilots will report for the game with the California Market on the evening of September 11. If you don't think there has been a great deal of interest in the voting, take a squint at the pile of ballots now on display in the window at the Telegraph office.

LEAGUE STANDINGS

You'll be interested to know the standings in the Illinois State Baseball league after the terrific upset that Walton took from Welland Sunday. Dixon now has a chance for a three-way tie for top position. That depends on what happens when Walton and West Brooklyn meet on Sunday. There may be some changes after that, but to date the set up is thus:

Team	W	L	Pct.
West Brooklyn	10	2	.833
Dixon	11	3	.785
Walton	9	3	.750
Maytown	10	4	.714
Rochelle	5	9	.357
Paw Paw	4	9	.307
Ohio	2	11	.153
Welland	1	11	.083

Pirates Shaken Up by Manager Today

Pittsburgh, Aug. 16—(AP)—Manager Pie Traynor benched two regulars today in an effort to shake his first-place Pirates out of the lethargy which has currently made them appear like a second division club.

First baseman Gus Suhr and Al Todd, bulky catcher, whose hitting has slumped, will be given a "rest," Traynor said. They will be replaced by Bill Brubaker and Ray Berres, respectively.

BONES CARLSON GETS HEADLINES FOR WINNING HIT

Telegraph Defeats the I. N. U. in an Affair That Doesn't Count

The I. N. U. softball players forgot the moral of the fable about the tortoise and the hare last night at the Airport diamond when they frittered away their time and the plodding Telegraph came in to win the race 7 to 6 in two overtime innings.

Manager Wells of the newbies is sighing today, however, for he agreed with Manager Schertner that if the pressmen won, it wouldn't count as a league game. The reason for this generosity was that four players were borrowed to complete the Telegraph line up, three of them from Reynolds Wire.

It seems the mild sprinkle in town put the fear of a downpour into the hearts of several Telegraph men and they just didn't show up.

The I. N. U. laughingly pranced around the field, didn't run out their bases and thought the whole matter a swell joke. But he who laughs loudest sometimes sounds hollow.

The Telegraph came into the sixth inning to take two runs and collected three in the seventh to make it a 5 all. In the sixth for the newsmen Carlson scored after a drive out to centerfield and Anderson who had nabbed a double came in on an error by third baseman.

Hit for Wells.

Wells, not expecting too much, came up for a pinch-hitting job in the last of the seventh and Lo! he got a single and got all the way to third during the process of the inning but was the second out when he tried to make home plate but a peg from third to catcher caught him. Greenfield got a single, took second on an overthrow and third on the play that caught Wells. A single by Becker scored Greenfield. Tradder got another single out to left field and both he and Becker scored on Carlson's right field hit.

I. N. U. got serious in the first overtime inning and took one run from two hits, but to keep the game alive the Telegraph took a run in their half of the inning when Rink got a double and scored on a play from pitcher to first.

In the ninth it was three-up-and-three-down for the I. N. U. and the Telegraph won when Greenfield who took first on an error tagged the keystone pushed in by Carlson's heroic hit to centerfield.

Cy Winebrenner and Spicy Cinnamon pitched for the Telegraph and Withers was the losing moulder.

DOWN TO BRASS TACKS.

The opening game between the Reynolds boys and Kellers was really serious enough and the wire and screen men took the grocery men on a 7 to 5 count.

Kellers got all of their runs in the first two chapters and took a field of goose eggs for the rest of the game. In the first inning A. Carlson got a single, robbed second and third and scored on Woolridge's hit to right field. In the second inning Kellers got one score when Rowley was walked in with the bases loaded, Wadsworth scored on a hit by Neuhausen and Holderman and A. Carlson came in on a hit over first base by E. Carlson.

Two Runs in Third.

Reynolds collected two runs in the third from four hits and one error. McConahay took the initial tag on a hit and error and E. Grove followed him in on the same play. Both runners had taken base on hits.

Wolford got a single in the first of the fourth when his drive hit the pitcher in the chest and he scored on a nifty triple by Flash Fordham. Fordham in on an overthrow to plate after a play at third. Rebuck's triple in the fifth scored McConahay and M. Grove's hit in the seventh scored Cinnamon and McConahay.

Fordham on the mound for Reynolds gave off eight hits, walked four and struck out seven. Miller, pitching for Kellers, permitted 11 hits, walked two and struck out four.

JOHN Q. PUBLIC NOW ATTRACTED TO TITLE BOUT

New York, Aug. 16—(AP)—The public suddenly has realized that Henry Armstrong and Lou Ambers will punch it out for Lou's lightweight title in Madison Square Garden Wednesday night, and the result is a gratifying boom in box office business.

All day yesterday fans stood in line outside the box office while Promoter Mike Jacobs beamed and predicted "A sellout sure."

The odds favor Henry by as much as 3 to 1 to beat Lou and add the lightweight crown to his featherweight and welterweight honors. Nevertheless the man in the street apparently thinks Lou will make a fight of it.

Unless he does it will not be a thriller. For Lou in his last two outings of major importance, his defeats of Tony Canzoneri and Pedro Montanez, was far from being a crowd pleaser. He retained his title both times but few of the fans were awake at the finish to see it.

May Be Thriller

He slapped and he dodged and occasionally he punched. If he does this against Armstrong, who can take all the slaps in the world, it will be no fun. But if he lives up to his often quoted prediction of taking the sting out of little perpetual motion with left hooks and uppercuts, it will be one of those fights they talk about for 20 years.

If Lou Ambers, the lightweight ruler, should lick the tar out of Henry Armstrong, the featherweight and welterweight foreman, tomorrow night at the Garden, the high spot of the fight season may be anticipated about a week later when Ambers, according to present plans, corners the New York state athletic commissioners and demands to know why he isn't the new king of the welterweights.

Ambers is given no better than a 1-to-3 chance in tomorrow's twice-postponed affair.

The two of them, Ambers and Armstrong, again completed their heavy training yesterday. Armstrong knocked down one of his guinea pigs, Lew Feldman.

STILL A CHANCE FOR CLOSE RACE FOR FIRST PLACE

However, With No Bad Luck the Pirates Should Triumph

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

There's still a possibility of one of those traditionally close National League races this season but right now it begins to look like a shoo-in for the Pittsburgh Pirates unless they run into the kind of luck that has been plaguing their rivals.

There's no doubt the Buccaneers are a tired crew right now. They played that way against the Cincinnati Reds yesterday and took a 6-2 beating as a result. But they're still going along with the same team that rushed from fourth place to the top in late June and early July.

The second-place New York Giants hardly have had a whole team all season. Now, either in a desperate effort to put themselves together for a final drive, or possibly looking towards next season, they have summoned young George Myatt from Jersey City to play third base while Master Melvin Ott returns to his old right field post.

Cubs Are Victims.

The Chicago Cubs, also victims of numerous crackups, took another severe blow yesterday when Manager Gabby Hartnett cracked a thumb trying to handle a foul tip. He won't be able to catch for three weeks. To make it tougher, the Cubs lost the game, 8-4, to the Cards and dropped into a third-place tie with Cincinnati.

The only other game yesterday saw the Boston Bees trim the Phillies, 5-3 as Rabbit Warstler set the pace with a triple and two singles. That gave Boston a 1½ game margin over the Brooklyn Dodgers, who like the Giants, were idle. The eight American league clubs also had the day off.

The Cards twice came from behind in their tussle with the Cubs, on a three-run second inning rally started by Lynn Myers' homer and on Medwick's four bagger in the sixth. Then Lou Warneke, who pitched two-hit ball over the last six innings, singled in two more runs in the eighth to finish the argument.

HARTNETT TAKES TO BENCH WITH THUMB INJURY

Chicago, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Charles Leo (Gabby) Hartnett, who succeeded Charley Grimm as manager of the Chicago Cubs 27 days ago, was a bench manager today—with prospects of being one for at least three weeks.

Gabby's right thumb was fractured by a foul tip from the bat of Joe Medwick in the first inning of yesterday's game with the St. Louis Cardinals. The jolt was just as severe to the Cubs' already splintered National League pennant chances.

Dr. John H. Davis, the club physician, said Gabby would be unavailable as a catcher for about three weeks, as a pinch hitter for 10 days.

The forced absence also just about blasted the peppery catcher's record of 100 games or more in each of 12 seasons, which Hartnett equaled last year. Yesterday's game was Gabby's 68th this season. To reach 100 he would have to play in 32 of the Cubs' remaining 49 games.

A number of events have happened to Hartnett in a month's time, but none more unwelcome than yesterday's homecoming mishap after an 18 game road trip, in which nine games were lost—six by one run margins.

On July 20 he was appointed manager of the club. Almost immediately the Cubs came through with four wins in five starts, including three in a row over the Giants.

On July 31, the burly 37-year-old receiver stole second base against the Phillies—his first steal since 1935 and his third in seven years.

Even Pitcher Larry French added to Hartnett's big Irish smile by suddenly paddocking his home run ball and pitching two consecutive shutouts.

But the big bat of Medwick seems to remain a menace, even when it produces no more than a foul ball.

231 TAVERNS CLOSED

Chicago—(AP)—Police Commissioner James P. Altmann announced that 231 taverns had been closed in Chicago because of the owners' failure to purchase licenses covering the last six months of the year. The total number issued was 9,222, compared with 9,496 for the first half of the year.

JUNIOR LEGION TEAM WINS OVER ROCKFORD, 14-9

The local Legion All-Stars obtained revenge on the Lawson Transfer team from Rockford Sunday on Reynolds field. The score was 14 to 9.

Dixon didn't look so hot in the field, but appeared to be veterans at the plate. Both pitchers on the mound for Dixon did very fine work. Each pitcher gave off four hits.

On August 28, Sterling comes to Dixon for a return game to attempt a repetition of the defeat they gave the local lads 8 to 5 on Sterling. A good sized crowd turned out to watch the game and the management wishes to thank them for their fine support of this baseball program.

Last night the Junior Legion White Sox made it three in a row by downing the Cubs by a score of 10 to 1. Welty pitched for the Cubs and allowed only 5 hits, but his support was very ragged. Tomorrow night the Pirates and Cardinals cross bats.

There will be only one more league game. Friday night ends the regular schedule and the standings will be published after that affair. The All-Stars have a very important battle on Sunday, August 28 with Sterling.

BUDGE LATE TO TOURNEY MISSES ABNORMAL HEAT

Newport, R. I., Aug. 16—(AP)—International Champion Don Budge, whose tardiness enabled him to escape yesterday's abnormal heat, today needed only victories over two unimpressive rivals to catch up with the star-studded Newport casino tennis field.

Budge, out of singles competition since his successful European campaign, was scheduled to resume action here in a second-round match against Bobby Low of New York.

A victory over that youngster will move Budge—winner of the last two casino titles—against Owen Anderson of Los Angeles, who is expected to give way for Budge's entrance in the round of 16 brackets now occupied only by the third-seeded Frankie Parker of Beverly Hills, Cal., and the veteran Johnny Van Ryn of Austin, Tex.

At the end of yesterday's action, some of it decided with the temperature close to 100, four domestic seeded players were in the third round, Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., Bryan (Bitty) Grant of Atlanta, Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., and Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Cal. Joe Hunt of Los Angeles, seeded second behind Budge, arrived so late he had time for only his first-round match with Don Martin, promising young Newporter, who bowed by 6-4, 6-2 margins.

Wayne Sabin of Los Angeles, ranked sixth nationally and seeded third here, was so affected by the heat he dropped his opening match to Norbert Burgess of Chicago, 6-4, 6-3. The latter then was eliminated by his townsman, Chester Murphy, after a hard-fought three-setter.

CHINESE ARMY 'ROUND HANKOW TOTALS MILLION

Shanghai, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek was reported today to have massed 1,000,000 men around Hankow, his provisional capital, toward which the Japanese have advanced slowly since occupying Kiukiang July 26.

The outer fringes of the Hankow defenses were challenged today by Japanese units on exploratory drives up both banks of the Yangtze river and southward toward Nanchang, Chinese air base 90 miles south of Kiukiang and 225 miles south of Hankow.

See-saw battles raged on both banks of the Yangtze in the Kiukiang area without major changes in positions as the war entered its 405th day.

The severest fighting was reported in hills around Red Lake where the Japanese were trying to push toward Juichang, 85 miles from the Canton-Hankow railroad.

Chinese reports said Horse Saddle mountain changed hands several times before the Chinese in a rain of grenades, recaptured the hill.

Cholera raged through Kiukiang. Japanese military authorities said nearly all the 10,000 Chinese who remained in that Yangtze port after its occupation were "likely victims" of the dread disease.

A Japanese air raid on Tangsin, 55 miles west of Kiukiang and in the Japanese path to the Canton-Hankow line, was said to have caused 500 Chinese deaths and injuries to 800, many of whom were patients in a Chinese military hospital.

Eldred Barrow Won State Fair Title
By WILLIAMS

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The barrow grand champion, one of the top agricultural prizes at the Illinois state fair was held today by the Cooke Valley farms at Eldred.

A 215-pound Hampshire barrow won the purple ribbon for an Illinois exhibitor and is to be sold at auction tomorrow night at the fairgrounds coliseum. Governor Horner has purchased the grand champion in recent years.

The 24th national swine show is being held in connection with the state fair, which today faced a threat of showers. Some rain fell on the crowd yesterday.

The better babies contest meanwhile uncovered a three-year-old boy who scored 100 per cent. Ward Schenk Curran of Springfield. Close behind in second place was a Decatur boy, Jimmy Dale Martin, who scored 99 per cent.

ADVERTISER DEAD
Alton, Ill.—(AP)—William M. Sauvage, 71, president of the Outdoor Advertising Association of Illinois and treasurer of the national association, died yesterday. He was mayor of Alton from 1917 to 1921.

THE CLOUDED MOON

By MAX SALTSMARSH

THE CHARACTERS

Hugo Stern, handsome author, living on the French Riviera.

Archie Lumsden, myself. Hugo's friend.

Rene Geiss, a singularly unpleasant cartoonist.

Yesterday: I hire a French boy, Jean-Francois, to investigate Geiss. He tells me Geiss's car was out of the garage at the time of the murders.

Chapter Eight

The Inquiry Begins

I marched into the living-room. "Hugo," I said "we are now the proud possessors of a press-agent. And," I continued, feeling I might as well be hanged for a sheep as a goat, "I've been and had my picture taken."

He gave me a stifled groan. "Go on," he said. "After that I can bear anything. Tell me the worst—were you wearing your lavender negligee or your beach pajamas?"

I had been extremely uneasy as to how he would react to my recent activities, but as I unfolded them I saw, with considerable relief, that a reluctant grin was stealing over his face.

"Well, well," said he as I finished. "I think you're daff, but I can't deny that the bit of news about Geiss is most refreshing. Our dream is taking a semblance of reality."

He got to his feet and paced the long room, which was filled now with a pleasant green half-light filtering through the closed shutters. "The fellow can't have committed the murder himself," he broke out at last, coming to a sudden halt in front of me. "He quite definitely wasn't there, and if he did what I suppose were both thinking and assisted in the murderer's get-away, he must be even madder than I took him for. It can't be that, Archie. The man's got a lunatic intelligence of his own—he's brilliant in his distorted fashion; he'd never make a slip like that."

"Unless," I suggested, "he had to act so quickly that there was no time for precaution. Suppose he suspected that the girl knew something damaging about him, but wasn't sure, and then suddenly discovered that she not only had the knowledge, but intended to act on it right away? He wouldn't have time to work out a plan of campaign or think about covering up his tracks. He'd have to act damn quick. But as no one appears to have so much as seen the murderer's face, and we don't know his name or where he's skipped off to, I don't see how we can hope to prove his connection with Geiss."

Hugo nodded. "Incoherent," he commented, "but sound. I'd suggest that we begin our investigations back side foremost induction in preference to deduction—and, starting from the premise that Geiss arranged the two murders, try to find out, why he did so. Come on, Archie. It's time we were facing the music."

He led the way through the hall to the courtyard, where his black Hispano basked sleepily in the sun. We got in and he turned the Hispano's nose towards the town. He took her at a spanking sixty miles an hour along the deserted esplanade, pulling up round the bend at a little cafe on the water-front.

"That's the Hotel de Ville," he told me, pointing across the clustering masts to an imposing edifice facing the harbor; "now for the high jump." And as he led the way round the cobble-paved quay he added: "Have your handkerchief!

ready if you want to preserve the copyright on your face."

It was a timely warning. As we made a dive through the archway, our faces muffled. I heard the clicking of cameras. But I saw no sign of Jean-Francois Lube, and I registered a prayer that he had found other and better fish to fry.

A military-looking sergeant de ville led us up a stairway to a big bare room on the first floor where ranged on wooden chairs around the wall and looking strangely like the patients in a dentist's waiting-room, I saw a number of familiar faces and a few that I did not know. The manager of Palm Beach was there, chatting with a dignified unconcern to the assistant maitre d'hotel, still pale and nervous. A handful of waiters, oddly different in their civilian clothes, were ranked stiffly at a respectful distance from their employer, and beyond them I recognized the policeman who had guarded O'Donnell's corpse the night before. In another corner Mme. Stefan, tall and elegant in tailored white, listened gravely of the whispered remarks of a small, stout, agitated-looking man in a lavender silk shirt and white trousers, who mopped his forehead every other minute with a vast orange handkerchief.

And then, as I duplicated Hugo's bow to the assembled company and looked around me for a chair, I saw at the far end of the room, leaning with an elegant detachment against a battered iron stove, Geiss himself.

"He means mischief!"

He had the air of being completely oblivious of his surroundings, but as we seated ourselves he recognized us with a welcoming smile and came across the floor.

"My friends!" he said, looking from one to the other of us with his head cocked on one side like a dispirited fowl. "You are, I hope, still my friends—even after last night? I am so sorry! I lost my temper. But you must not do it again! You must not joke about my little superstitions! They are a funny joke to you, but to me they are part of that dream world in which every great artist lives—that world which is so much more real than reality. I tell you, I slept not a wink last night, thinking of what you had said, and if I had tried to work today, I should have been very angry with you, for the inspiration would have been wanting. But as it is, I forgive you, for this morning we are all alike—artists, writers, commoners we are all servants of the state, giving what help we can. Is it not so?"

Hugo inclined his head. "Today even the least of mortals is the equal of Rene Geiss—in the sight of the State," he agreed solemnly. "Though I'm afraid that what you or I or Archie here have to tell won't be of much help."

He ended on a note of query, and the cartoonist gave him a quick look. Expressionless though his face was, there was nevertheless something fairly derisive in the curl of his mouth.

"For myself, that is so," he answered, and spread out his hands. "What, after all, do I know? I was not there. I saw nothing! But you, my dear Hugo, and your large young friend—I fancy you will find that the examining magistrate relies much on what you can tell him."

He turned his opaque eyes on me. "And you at least," he added quietly, "mon cher ami, have the satisfaction of being the hero of the hour. You will pardon me, I hear my name called—I must go." He turned away to where the ser-gent de ville was beckoning him through a half-open door into an inner room.

I leaned towards Hugo. "That man means mischief," I said under my breath, and saw him nod.

"He can't do much," he said doubtfully, "but he's a man of consequence and he knows the judge well, so watch your step, Archie. I've a feeling that we were a trifle unwise in showing our hands so clearly last night."

I was so entirely in agreement with him that I found nothing to say, and it was in a rather apprehensive silence that we sat watching the hands of the big clock slowly move on.

They had traveled as far as the half-hour when the inner door opened again, and every eye in the room turned instinctively towards it. The sergeant appeared in the opening. "Monsieur le Baron Stahl!" he called incisively, and to my amazement the small fat man to whom Mme. Stefan had been talking, got to his feet and scurried across the floor like a frightened, unwieldy rabbit.

"Your Story, Please."

He was a dark-skinned, swarthy little creature, who looked as if he would have been more at home in the dish-washing department of some Soho restaurant. He was dressed in the height of Riviera fashion, but the white trousers showed up his great paunch unmercifully, and the lavender shirt opened inconspicuously over his hairy chest.

"If that's a great financier, I'm a Turk!" I whispered to Hugo, but got no answering grin.

"He's a badly frightened one, at all events," he whispered back. "Archie, I'd give my hope of salvation and half my American royalties to know what he's telling them in there!"

The next moment the door opened a third time and I heard my name called. I got to my feet, and I stepped into the inner sanctum. It was a middling-sized room, and at first glance it seemed full of people. Behind a vast desk in the middle of the floor sat a small gray man, so thin that he looked like a bundle of matchsticks tightly buttoned into an official frock coat, but with a pair of uncommonly sharp black eyes. The commissaire of police sat beside him, and at a table in the corner a little fellow like a lawyer's clerk scribbled furiously on some foolscap. A uniformed gentleman stood by a door in the opposite wall, through which I imagined Baron Stahl must recently have made his exit, and beside him three men in civilian clothes gossiped in low voices, but at my entry they broke off and eyed me curiously. I realized that I was in the presence of the famous parquet, the court of the examining magistrate.

The commissaire got ponderously to his feet, flapped a fat white hand in my direction, and named me. "Monsieur le juge, this is Mr. Lumsden." The judge watched me as I settled myself and then leaned forward, his elbows on the table. "And now, monsieur," he said in a dry brittle voice like the crackling of twigs, "we will have your story, if you please. It will be easier, I think, if you will tell it in your own words from the beginning. You know what we desire to hear."

It certainly suited me better to tell my own tale and I took it slowly, choosing my words as carefully as I could, for though my French is adequate, it could not be described as first-class, and I was mortally afraid of saying something that would not tally with the tale they would presently hear from Hugo. He heard me to the end in silence, making no comment and putting no questions, a fact that after a time, I found slightly disturbing; and when I had finished he sat for a good minute in silence, staring at me out of those beady eyes with an expression that I didn't altogether like.

HARMON

By MARGARET ANDERSON

Mr. and Mrs. George Ross accompanied by their grandsons Stanley and Ervin Ridge of Sterling and Miss Elaine Kranov have returned home from a few days' sight-seeing trip. They visited the Niagara cave in Harmony, Minn., which went 317 feet under ground with a waterfall below that. In Decora, Iowa, they visited the Ice Cave, which is noted by Robert Ripley in his "Believe It Or Not" as ice forms in the summer and melts in the winter, but Mr. Ross states that he failed to see any ice. They told him they had a terrible flood in July. On returning they stopped at the beautiful grotto at Dickeyville, Wis. In the Niagara Cave at 317 feet below ground there is "the Bridal Veil" which is a well formed by icicles and a place there which marriage can be performed.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Luez recently at the Dixon hospital. Mrs. Luez will be remembered as Miss Catherine Dimmig from here.

Mrs. Will Kranov with her sister Mae Larkin of Rockford are spending several days in Chicago and Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thrasher and her father L. L. Allen returned to Ancona and visited in the home of his brother, T. P. Thrasher.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Long entertained relatives from Chicago in their home over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Ryan and children and Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien and children motored here from Chicago and were week-end guests in the Mary and Dan Leonard home.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Bauer were out from Sterling and were week-end guests in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Fitzpatrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Peterson and son motored to Tampico on Sunday and visited in the home of Mrs. Kate Brady. Other callers were Mrs. Mae Peterson, Mrs. Floyd Reinagle and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dronenberg of Tampico.

Miss Helen Butler is spending a few days here in the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Butler and family.

The Misses Eileen Long, Francis Hermes and Jane O'Connell have returned home from DeKalb where they had been attending the six weeks' summer course at the Teachers' College.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Anderson and daughter Faye Ellen of Maytown visited in the LeRoy Kent home on Sunday.

Mrs. Genevieve Brooks has returned to her home in Chicago after a few days' visit here with her daughter, Miss Lavin, in the I. H. Perkins home.
